

YELL seeks young entrepreneurs

Philip Raphael / Richmond News

July 10, 2015 10:34 AM

Planning to nurture a group of young entrepreneurs with their YELL program in three public school districts, including Richmond, are (from left) Punit Dhillon, Rattan Bagga and Richmond's Amit Sandhu, a McNair grad who is CEO of his family's development firm, Ampri Group. Photograph By Submitted photo

Local, young entrepreneurs looking to hone their business skills can still land a spot in the YELL (Young Entrepreneur Leadership Launchpad) program.

The program is a hands-on, experiential accelerator for high school students interested in gaining knowledge and leadership experience in all areas of business and entrepreneurship.

YELL brings mentors from the business community into classrooms to discuss their experience and best practices in all aspects of business ranging from corporate finance to social entrepreneurship.

The unique educational experience helps participants develop a broader understanding of the challenges business leaders face, the many dimensions of the business world, and the impact they can have on their community and the world through business leadership.

For more information about the program and to apply, visit weyell.org.

